The termination of any action, suit or proceeding by judgment, order, settlement, conviction or plea of nolo contendere or its equivalent shall not create a presumption that the person did not act in a manner reasonably believed to be in or not opposed to the best interests of the PIA and, with respect to any criminal action or proceeding, had reasonable cause to believe that the conduct was unlawful.

Article XVI: USA Antitrust Guidelines

Section 1. Guidelines

The Parachute Industry Association (PIA) is the international trade association headquartered in the United States of America which represents parachute manufacturers, users, and their suppliers, which participate in the global market. PIA's mission is to promote and enhance its members' competitiveness, productivity and profitability in the global market by minimizing regulatory, commercial, political, and trade restraints. PIA provides its members opportunities to network and share ideas on issues of common interest.

As a USA based corporation, the antitrust laws of the United States of America commit us to preserve a competitive economy unrestrained by agreements or concerted actions among competitors, which restrict their competitive capabilities or the opportunities of their competitors, their suppliers or their customers. Our objectives as an organization have been, and continue to be, achieved without violating our antitrust standards, so long as we remain cognizant of our responsibilities and adhere to safe conduct guidelines for participating in meetings and other activities.

Section 2. Compliance

Who is responsible for the antitrust compliance? All the PIA members and any guests who may participate in meetings sponsored by PIA must comply with the antitrust laws.

Section 3. Conduct

Certain conduct among competitors is obviously unlawful, such as agreements to fix prices, boycott suppliers, limit production or allocate markets or customers. Other conduct, however, is less easily identified or defined, and we all rely upon the good judgment of the PIA members and guests to avoid intrusions into those areas.

If you have any questions about any of the guidelines, please discuss them with your company's legal counsel.
